

Wildlife Crossword!

Across

3. This type of animal is a hind-gut fermenter and eats primarily grasses in the wild
6. Which of our ambassador animals is one of the only sexually dimorphic (males and females look different) species of raptor?
7. Which of our ambassador animals represents a species from Australia?
9. Which species is commonly used as the bald eagle call in movies?

Down

1. What species does not get its iconic white plumage on its head until five years of age?
2. Which species is known for its colorful stripe down its body and acts as great rodent control?
3. Which type of animal is colloquially referred to as a "trash panda" and uses its hands routinely?
4. What species is known for the hinge on their shell that allows them to completely enclose themselves for protection from predators?
5. This species is one of the most common orphans we see in the clinic
8. This type of animal has asymmetric ears (in different places on either side of the head) and is the only animal we can release with only one eye