VET MED COMES TO LIFE!

at the annual Open House of the University of Illinois College of Veterinary Medicine.

You'll find more than 40 family-friendly activities, educational exhibits, and fascinating demonstrations.

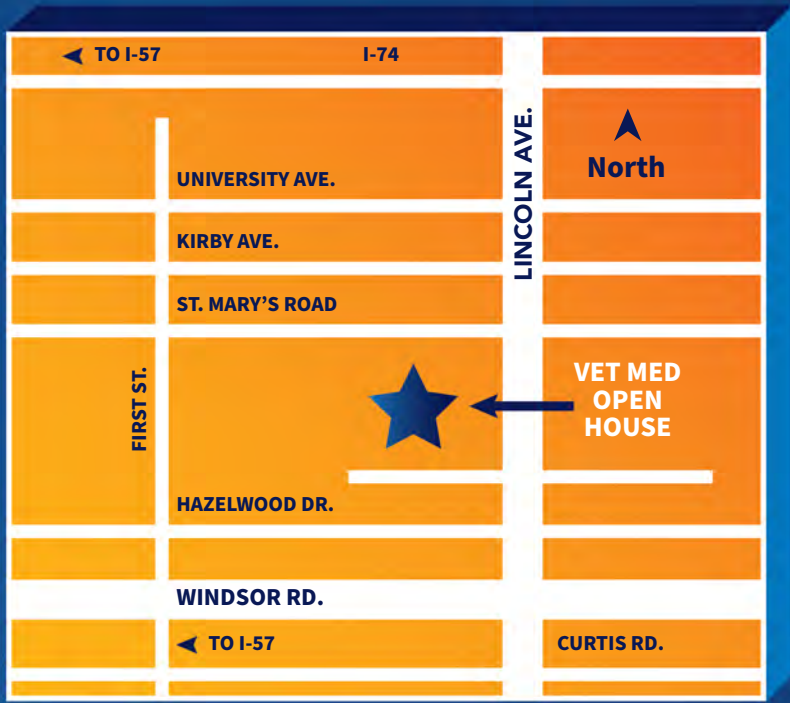

Interact with current veterinary students and lots of animals to bring the science of veterinary medicine to life and explore the limitless career opportunities in this field.

Admission is free, and no registration is required to attend.

Groups of all sizes and ages are welcome.
(Please note: There will be many live animals at Open House, but the public may not bring animal guests.)

Visit vetmed.illinois.edu/openhouse for details!

The student organizers gratefully acknowledge support for Open House from the Chicago Veterinary Medical Association.

Veterinary Medicine Open House is located at 2001 South Lincoln Avenue in Urbana, Illinois. From I-74, take the Lincoln Avenue exit south 3 miles. From I-57, take the Curtis Road exit east to Route 45, turn north and drive to Windsor Road, then turn east on Windsor until you reach Lincoln Avenue. The college is 0.6 mile north on Lincoln.
